ENRICO BRUNO: Course Evaluation Summary (Qualitative)

Cultivating an inclusive, engaging classroom environment:

- I think his main strength is getting everyone in class involved. The class seemed very comfortable in speaking your own ideas.
- He is really great at facilitating group discussions and he always comes to class prepared.
- Enrico is knowledgeable and hilarious. There are many fun activities in class. And the questions he asked before every class are fun and surprising. He gets students involved naturally and always inspires us to think creatively.
- Very kind, considerate teacher. Similar in age to his own students so what he was teaching I felt like was easier to learn because of the close proximity in age (in comparison to other instructors), and he often times made strong attempts to get the entire classroom of students involved with each other.
- He is very thorough with what is being taught & involves the students in things that affect us like due dates & in class participation

Course design and facilitation:

- I felt that Enrico did a wonderful job teaching this semester. I was dreading taking this class, however, it turned out to be my favorite class this semester. As a junior and as a transfer, I was very nervous and unsure of starting at a new school and starting with all new classes and professors. Enrico made me feel comfortable and safe in this environment. I loved the conversations we had as a class, as well as the ones Enrico took the time to take with me individually. I'm so thankful I was able to take this class!
- Enrico made teaching us his first priority every day and genuinely cared that his students were learning the information on his teaching plan.
- Enrico is a passionate and engaging teacher. The course materials he chose are not only helpful to the course. They build off each other and gradually get harder, but doesn't feel difficult at any time.
- He is a very informed teacher and stayed composed throughout the semester. He was prepared for class and organized it in a manner that helped the class learn well.
- He is very thorough with what is being taught & involves the students in things that affect us like due dates & in class participation

Re: Instructor's main strengths:

- Staying on task, relating activities to topics we are assigned to learn, thoroughly explaining assignment instructions, always being available to help outside of class.
- Engaging in talking in class. Bringing activities to connect with class concepts.
- Being very positive and clear on what he is teaching. Nothing is assigned for just side/extra work. It's all relatable, fun, and relevant to course objectives.
- Very organized lesson planning. Definitely interesting introductions to topics and presentations, like PowerPoints or activities.
- Providing examples on the spot, and time management. Class always ends right on time.

Responses to student work:

- One of Enrico's best teaching qualities was his comments and suggestions while working on drafts. I thought he always had really good ideas and insight on what we can do to improve our work, which was very helpful.
- [Comments] were very helpful he identified everything very well. He highlighted the area that needed work and told you a direction to go in.
- I [understood feedback] very clearly, he would offer suggestions on an essay or help out with creating a stronger thesis. He respects effort.
- Most [comments] were really helpful in making my paper and speeches better. Nothing was just said as a judgmental comment. It was more critique.
- I like that he gave feedback on essays. I have never had a teacher give such thorough rough draft feedback.
- He was straight to the point and concise
- [Comments] were very helpful in allowing me to see another person's point of view (that was knowledgeable) and helped improve speeches and essays.
- Yes, instructor's comments were always thorough and provided examples of how we could improve our writing and ideas on what we could talk about.
